SMOKER AND PRESENTATIONS

J. W. Hey Presented With a Gold Watch.

The Great War Veterans' Association held a most enjoyable smoker on Monday evening, when a good number of their members met in the Armouries for a social evening and to do honor to J. W. Hey who is leaving the city.

A dainty supper came first, provided by the Ladies' Auxiliary, and, as usual, they upheld their reputation for serving the most appetizing spread.

After the good things provided had been consumed, and everyone had smoked happily, Mr. Hey was presented with a gold watch by the association.

Paterson called on A. H. Myles for a song, and he complied with a Scotch song that he had composed. H. J. Done, leader of the Veterans' orchestra, then favored the gathering with a violin solo by a song by W. F. Harris, both of which were heartily appreciated and enjoyed.

The choir of the church then performed the event of the evening, the presentation to Jas. W. Hey from the G.W.V.A. with the beautiful watch suitably inscribed with the words "Presented to J. W. Hey, by the G.W.V.A. on March 29th, 1920."

AGRICULTURE AND LABOR

Mr. Dower asks us to publish the following letter, which has already appeared in print, as it may be of benefit to some farmers who are uncertain in their views on the open and closed door in the organization:

To the Editor of The News:—After the somewhat animated discussion of this subject a few weeks ago, I was rather disappointed not to find anything further contributed.

As intimated in my last letter, I recognize the fact that the subject has many sides and angles, and, as I paid my compliments chiefly to the noisy bunch within the ranks of Labor, it seems to be at present dominating that organization, it is only fair for me to say that I do not for a moment believe that they are the whole show.

We have also within our ranks a noisy bunch who, if not held in check, are liable to stampede the whole organization into trouble; and it is, I may be, in the vain hope that I might be able to say something of use that I undertake to say anything at all.

My long association with and intimate knowledge of the views of the pioneers of the movement, those who save their time and talents ungrudgingly to the work without money and without price, gives me, I think, a right to say something on the subject.

It is well known that the pioneers in the movement all over Canada were for years averse to going into politics at all, not because we had no political grievances, but for the same reason that Sam Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor in the U.S., still gives for opposing their forming a Labor party.

The reason was that we had not arried at the stage when we could expect complete unity in our own ranks, and that as yet we had not formulated a new national platform upon which we could invite all fair minded men from every class of society, as well as our own members.

That stage having now been arrived at, it seems to me to be the rank and file of folly to close the door.

That I share this opinion in common with the great majority of the experienced pioneers of the movement, I am fully convinced, not only from conversations I have had with men in our province, but from the stand taken in other provinces as well.

The thoughtful comprehensive report of the secretary of the Saskatchewan Association, which was considered and endorsed by directors and executive before presentation to the convention, leaves no doubt as to their stand. As also the address of the secretary of the Council of Agriculture and of Mr. Cramer and others.

The policy of the parent, economic or industrial association in all the provinces has always been, and must continue to be, to keep the door closed to others than farmers, but it has also been their policy that when entering the political field they must do so in sympathy with, but outside, the parent organization, and upon a national platform which will welcome all who sincerely wish to become a party to it. Any other policy than this must surely result in ultimate failure.

It is the culmination of the thought of all the years of the life of the organization and it is evidently still the policy of the other provinces. Only in this province does there seem to be any difference of opinion; and while, in spite of that difference, we might be able to win several elections, our prestige and influence will be seriously handicapped.

We might be able to convince other parties that class organization for political purposes does not mean class legislation; but the crux of the question is: can we convince others? That we cannot do so is very evident; the elections that have been held prove this. The towns are lining up against the country, and, as time goes on, this will show itself more and more, particularly if our Alberta Association persists in this foolish attitude. A closed policy will not only handicap us here but will have a more detrimental effect on the farmers' platform further east, where there are larger urban centres, as our action will tend to discredit the sincerity of the other provincial organizations.

It is unreasonable to suppose that organizations of labor, merchants, professionals, or any others, would support us as organizations, but there are thousands amongst all of these who would line up with us if given a "fair field and no favors." But how in the name of all that is reasonable can we expect their votes and support, if we deliberately antagonize them by closing the door, giving them no voice in the choosing of candidates or in anything else?

It has been said that our president, Mr. Wood, has "pitched his wagon to a star." I sincerely hope that the star does not prove to be a meteor which after its fall will be found with the wagon attached in the hole.

As Mr. Wood has never been on the executive during my term of office, and is personally almost a stranger to me, I have not the intimate knowledge of his private views or the reasons controlling his actions that I have had of the earlier members of the association. One thing I have noticed, and which I think is plain to everyone, is his determination that there shall be what he calls harmony in the executive, which is the cabinet of the association of which he is the prime minister.

If, then, it is a prime necessity that there be no divergent views tolerated in the executive of our association, how can we suppose it possible to conduct the government of the country along different lines. So different, that group organization politically is a deliberate attempt to bring about that very thing. While a parliament consisting of representatives chosen from hostile occupational groups would be sure to indulge in debates of a most intense and forceful character, it would be humanly impossible to form a cabinet out of such antagonistic elements capable of satisfactorily conducting the affairs of government.

JAMES BOWSER,
Past President of C.P.A. and Canadian Council of Agriculture,
Red Deer, Feb. 23, 1920.

TURKEY TO GET JUSTICE, NOT INDULGENCE

London, March 22.—Premier Lloyd George on Friday discussed the Turkish question with the Indian cabinet delegation headed by Mohammed Ali, who declared that Turkey should have all her pre-war territory restored.

The premier replied: "I do not understand Mr. Mohammed Ali to claim indulgence for Turkey; he claims justice, and justice she will get. Austria has had justice; Germany has had justice—pretty terrible justice. Why should Turkey escape?"

Turkey thought she had a feud with us. Why did she come in and try to stab us and destroy liberty throughout the world while we were engaged in this life and death struggle?

"In there any reason why we should apply a different measure to Turkey than we have meted out to the Christian communities of Germany and Austria?"

"I want the Mohammedans in India to get it well into their minds that we are not treating Turkey severely because she is Mohammedan. We are applying equally the same principle to her as to Austria, which is the greatest community."

Referring to the temporal power of the caliphate, the premier said he could not interfere with a religious question in which Mohammedans themselves differed.

The delegation requested that the Armenian massacres be investigated by an international commission, on which the Moslems were represented. Regarding the Armenian massacres, the premier said that the Allies were bound in the interests of civilization to exercise control of some sort, since the Turkish government was incapable of protecting its own subjects.

"I want to give this feeling to the Moslems of India, who stood loyally by the throne and the empire," said the premier. "We have largely deferred to their wishes in this matter. The settlement was very largely affected by the opinion of the Muslims of India."

CORRECTED.

Mr. Hughes, the Australian premier, tells the following amusing story concerning the days when he was a school teacher in London:

"I once wrote on a blackboard these words: 'The toast was drank in silence,' and then asked my class, 'Can anyone tell me what the mistake in this sentence is?'"

"The pupils pondered. Then a little girl held up her hand, and at a nod from me went to the board and wrote the following correction: 'The toast was sent in silence.'"

Ho (admiring view of flowers)—Are they not beautiful? Do you know they remind me of you.

She—But they are artificial.
He—Ah, yes, but you'd never know it.—Boston Transcript.

AGRICULTURE AND LABOR

Mr. Bower asks us to publish the following letter, which has already appeared in print, as it may be of benefit to some farmers who are uncertain in their views on the open and closed door in the organization:

To the Editor of The News:—Dear Sir,—After the somewhat animated discussion of this subject a few weeks ago, I was rather disappointed not to find anything further contributed.

As intimated in my last letter, I recognize the fact that the subject has many sides and angles, and as I paid my compliments chiefly to the noisy bunch within the ranks of Labor that seem to be at present dominating that organization, it is only fair for me to say that I do not for a moment believe that they are the whole show.

We have also within our ranks a noisy bunch who, if not held in check, are liable to stampede the whole organization into trouble; and it is, it may be, in the vain hope that I might be able to say something of use that I undertake to say anything at all.

My long association with and intimate knowledge of the views of the pioneers of the movement, those who gave their time and talents unreservedly to the work without money and without price, gives me, I think, a right to say something of the fact.

It is well known that the pioneers in the movement in all over Canada were for years averse to going into politics at all, not because we had no political grievances, but for the same reason that Sam Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor in the U.S., still gives for opposing their forming a Labor party.

ASK THAT ALIENS
ARE DEPORTED

Resolution at G.W.V.A. Convention Deals With Immigration to Canada.

Montreal, March 26.—The deportation of people of German, Austrian, Turkish and Bulgarian origin, whom it is impossible to assimilate as Canadian citizens, is demanded in a clause contained in a resolution relating to immigration, deportation and naturalization, passed by the Great War Veterans' Association, on the resumption of its annual convention here this morning. The resolution, which will be submitted to the Dominion government, suggests that all disfranchised aliens be given one year to dispose of their property, and also contends that all unassimilated citizens should be examined before a properly constituted court, which will determine whether or not they are desirable citizens, so that the undesirable ones can be deported.

ORIENTAL QUESTION

The question of Orientalism in British Columbia was also dealt with in this resolution, and the government is to be petitioned to make it impossible for them to own or lease land. A protest is also recorded against the deportation of British-born people, domiciled in Canada, who may be charged with sedition, without trial by jury. The re-establishment committee brought in a resolution which provides for the naming of one delegate from each province to accompany the Dominion executive of the association to Ottawa to interview the government and submit the resolution passed at the convention. It further recommends that all co-operation necessary be obtained and explained in this connection that "co-operation" means that assistance from the other soldier associations could be accepted.

TRANSFER DROPPED

The motion to transfer the convention was dropped, as it will likely conclude its labor tonight or tomorrow. During the morning session a labor resolution was carried, which demanded the appointment of two returned soldiers on the civil service commission; that new appointments to government positions be from the ranks of soldiers, and that all married women be released from government employment.

An addition to the re-establishment resolution dealing with such subjects as housing, life insurance, medical and dental service after discharge, war service gratuity, and clothing allowance was also adopted this morning.

Canon Scott, of Quebec, and C. E. Jenkins, Ontario, withdrew from the presidential election this morning.

NEWS WEEKLY SERMON

By REV. GEO. D. ARMSTRONG

Verily, Verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit.—John 12:24.

These words were spoken by the Master after the visit of the Greeks who had come up to worship at Jerusalem. There was prophetic value in the incident. It foreshadowed the time when the religion of the Jews and the religion of the Greeks would be superseded by the religion of Jesus.

Each was to be fulfilled in the larger unity of Christianity. These imperfect revelations of the divine prepared the way for the universal and perfect religion of mankind. The hour had come when the Son of Man was to be glorified, and a new principle of righteousness was to replace the former ideal of the world. Humanity had struck its tent, and the onward march of progress was begun.

It is this age of world-wide progress, more than any other, that has realized the conditions which obtained in the spiritual and religious life of the first century.

Out of the narrowest and most exclusive religious system of ancient times, there was emerging a new order, destined to be world-wide and all inclusive—the democracy of God.

Jesus knew that in the truth that He was teaching in the personal influence He was wielding, the germ principle of this new life was being quickened. He had come that the horizon of men's lives should be widened; that they might have life, and have it more abundantly. He knew that He had a gospel whose glory could not be confined to any one church or nation, but for all mankind—a gospel for an age of doubt, a gospel for a world of sin.

Whatever may actually have transpired when Christ was transfigured, it is evident that in the mind of Jesus His mission was vitally related to the religion of the past as expressed in the law and the prophets.

Now as He faces the experiences of Gethsemane and of Calvary, His mind relates itself to the whole order of nature.

The law of sacrifice runs through all things—it is the way of life. Except a corn of wheat die, it abideth alone. If it die (mystery of living) it lives a hundredfold.

Jesus takes this law of life and makes it a vital factor in His teaching an essential to salvation. "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal." In obedience to this principle Jesus faces the conflict of self-surrender and death, and triumphs.

The Cross of Christ has had a large place in the thought of the church; it has appealed to our imagination and has figured largely in our profession.

Sometimes it refers simply to the death of Christ Himself—often it means some doctrine for the atonement—as a symbol it expresses the entire Christian faith. But Jesus "at no time required anyone to accept His Cross but he again and again made it the universal condition of discipleship that every follower should accept his own Cross. In many pulpits the Cross of Christ has come to mean the doctrine of the atonement, and the hearer finds it much easier to accept Christ's Cross than to accept his own. The former is a dogma; the latter is an experience. He can accept any doctrine of the atonement and remain selfish; he cannot accept his own Cross without the death of self-will, the crucifixion of selfishness."

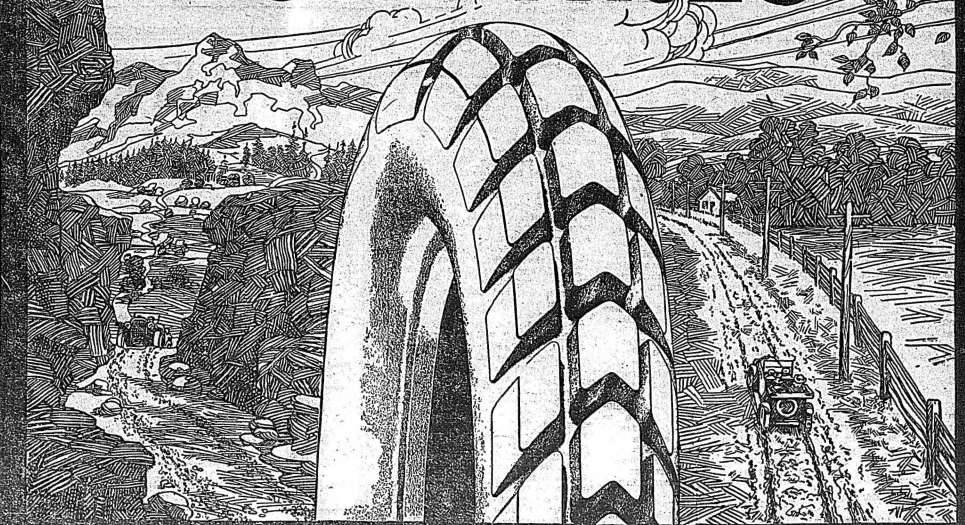

Honest thoughtful people have found it difficult to relate the Cross of Christ to their lives as it has been interpreted in Christian teaching. It seems to them a "far-off divine event" far removed from their every-day personal lives. But they have little difficulty in understanding its significance when it is interpreted by Christian experience.

"For all through life they see a cross Where sons of men yield up their breath. There is no gain except by loss, There is no life except through death."

Life, experience is the great interpreter of religion. As we have faced the problems of suffering, disappointment, bereavement, and loss, which form the common lot of man, and especially as we have faced the heaviest of life in the intensity of world-war and the social and spiritual unrest of the present age, out of the travail of our souls—we have learned to see.

Are we able to share in the experience of the Master and to accept the principle of sacrifice, of service and of love, the law of our life? Are we being crucified with Christ?

And in times like these can we also say "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us, for the earnest expectation of creation waiteth for the appearing of the Sons of God."

DUNLOP
CORD TIRES

The Super-Test

BEFORE you are asked to buy or try Dunlop Cord Tires, they must undergo a test such as you would never give them.

Tires just like your garagemen and dealers now sell are put on our own test cars, and away speed the drivers.

—A Test that is kept up day and night.

—A Test that takes in some of the worst roads in the country and the generality of bumps, bad turns, and all the sudden stops that go with them.

—A Test that specifies the number of miles which must be made by the drivers each day and night.

The results of this crucial test, naturally, have an important bearing on our manufacturing policy.

Tested-in-Advance Service apply applies to Dunlop Cord Tires—"Traction," "Ribbed." Can you ask for a greater guarantee than the story the road tells—a story which in the case of Dunlop Cord Tires proves that our manufacturing methods are not only Right but Dead Right?

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 31st, 1920.

Any addition to profitable livestock on farms will depend on the market found for the meat overseas. The prospect in Europe, according to the repeated warnings of the British Food Controller, Hon. G. H. Roberts, is of a sharp shortage of all meat foods in 1920. If Canadian exportation of beef were increased on some of the three acres of its only just meet the importation into the United Kingdom alone, not to speak of other European countries. The British consumption of imported beef is five million hundred-weights annually. In round numbers the livestock bought on Canadian stockyards through the packing houses in 1919 totalled: Cattle, 568,000; calves, 182,000; hogs, 917,000; and sheep, 400,000.

DELBURNE'S DAIRY OUTLOOK

Delburne Progress.—After reading a statement of the total of butter which was made by the Delburne Creamery branch of the Edmonton City Dairy for the year 1919, we rather had to stop and ponder over the possibilities of this district. As yet this district is not very thickly settled in lots of ways. There is all kinds of vacant land through it at present, and if the creamery here can make 250,000 lbs. of butter from the cream which they buy from the present population, how much will they be making when the whole district is settled?

INTERESTS OF THE FARMING INDUSTRY

The several branches and divisions of the federal department of agriculture are each putting forth every effort to advance the interests of the farming industry. Dairying is gaining new strength and the various branches are continuing their progress and the poultry industry is taking a leading place in Canadian agriculture. The report of the Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion of Canada for the year ending March 31, 1919, obtainable from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, sets forth the activities of the department for the fiscal year 1918-19. It shows what has been accomplished in the various branches and indicates the progress of agriculture in general. Among other interesting facts it states that Canada in 1918 produced about one hundred tons of gold root and vegetable seeds. This shows the industry is a new one but its possibilities are almost unlimited.

NATURALIZATION OF ALIENS IS IMPEDED FOR 10-YEAR PERIOD

Malghen Explains New Disfranchisement Clause in the House of Commons

Ottawa, March 26.—Sir George Foster, in the house this afternoon, introduced a bill respecting copyrights. The purpose of the bill, he said, was to establish a uniform period of copyright protection. It further extended copyright protection to sound recordings, films and lithographs. Protection was also provided for the works of Canadian authors throughout His Majesty's dominions.

PENSIONS COMMITTEE

On a motion of Mr. Howell, the membership of the pensions committee and its scope of activity were extended. To the membership were added the names of those on the re-establishment committee until the pensions committee were given authority to carry on the work begun by the re-establishment committee.

Sir George Foster moved that the house adjourn over Easter from Wednesday evening next at 6 o'clock until Tuesday, the sixth of April. The original motion provided for adjournment on Friday, but on the suggestion of Ernest Lapointe, it was amended to read on Wednesday.

EXPLAINS DISFRANCHISEMENT

Hon. Arthur Malghen, minister of the interior, explained the meaning of the government in framing clause 28 of the new franchise act providing for the disfranchisement of certain enemy aliens in Canada. He wished to clear up a misunderstanding which has arisen on both sides of the house from the reading of this clause in conjunction with Section 8 of the naturalization bill passed last session. Last year's bill, he said, was to terminate naturalization of such citizens in such a manner that all persons naturalized in Canada should be British subjects.

It conformed with legislation which was practically uniform throughout the empire. And it provided that any subject of an enemy state could obtain naturalization in Canada at the period of 10 years at the latest after the expiration of the present war. Exceptions were made in the case of people of such races as were known to be opposed to the enemy, those who took part in the war on the side of the allies, and those who were British subjects, although enemy born, through previous naturalization. The provisions were embodied in the current bill.

The purpose of the legislation was to impose for a period of 10 years the admission into citizenship as British subjects, said Mr. Malghen, enemy subjects who were not British. There was no intention in framing this clause to affect in any way whatever people who were British subjects at the time the naturalization act was passed.

Mr. Malghen then read Clause 28 of the franchise bill, to which exception had been taken.

Voicing western views, Mr. White, Victoria, Alberta, called the bill a revolution to keep the government in power, which could not keep in power by any other means. Such a bill, he said, was worthy of Mexico.

On the other hand, Mr. Foster said, Mr. White's stand was understood to find considerable favor among government members.

Mr. Foster would have the bill go further. He would disfranchise slackers, alien enemies and deserters. Otherwise placed, proceedings in committee were interrupted in the evening by a short sharp battle over the clause forbidding companies not incorporated for political purposes to contribute to campaign funds.

Mr. Maharg, Maple Creek, Sask., led with a demand if it meant that no group of individuals could band themselves together to assist in an election campaign.

"Yes," the solicitor-general agreed; "I think that is the practical effect." Mr. Maharg was again on his feet. "Then," he exclaimed, "no groups of laborers returned soldiers or 'O' farmers' came the shout from a dozen points."

It could be done and was done under the old law, Mr. Maharg retorted. And on the suggestion of the solicitor-general, the committee proceeded with less contentious clauses of the bill. An interim supply bill for approximately $63,000,000, passed all stages during the early afternoon.

The clause, Mr. Malghen said, appeared in the women's suffrage act of 1918, and in the bill of resolutions of last year. The purpose of the clause was to ensure that there should be no such investigation as to the qualification of those who sought to vote by reason of becoming naturalized by process of law as existed in the case of those who had secured naturalization by personal application. Mr. Malghen agreed with the statement made by Mr. Gaultrie last night that subjects of enemy birth coming to Canada would not be able to vote under the bill for 10 years because during that period they would not be able to secure naturalization.

PERSONAL NATURALIZATION

"But I firmly adhere to the principle," Mr. Malghen continued, "that no one naturalized in this country by operation of law shall secure rights to the franchise until he or she has taken the oath of allegiance to the crown or she lives up to the general provisions lived up to by the one who has secured naturalization by personal application."

There is no reason why a woman who has become a British subject in Canada two or three weeks after arrival here merely by her marriage here with a naturalized Canadian husband, should be entitled to the franchise where anyone else coming from an enemy country must show that he has actual knowledge of English or French, that he possesses the character we desire should be possessed by those who wish to become citizens of this country and has the other necessary qualifications.

DIVIDE COMMUNITY HALL

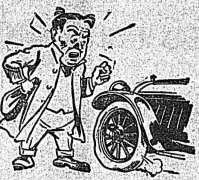

A big box social was held in the Divide Community Hall on Friday, March 19, and was a great success, $200 being raised. The boxes were very pretty and keen competition was the natural result, the highest box being sold for $18. Mr. E. L. Bawlin was the auctioneer and he certainly got results. The floor was in fine shape and everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The next dance will be held on Thursday, April 1. Gent's 41, ladies free. Ladies please bring baskets. Everybody welcome.

GUNS FOUND NEAR BERLIN

Three Thousand Five Hundred Located in Vicinity of Capital Alone

Paris, March 28.—Three thousand five hundred three-inch field guns have been found by the inter-allied commission in the vicinity of Berlin alone, and altogether 1,200 of these guns have thus far been discovered throughout Germany, as well as six thousand aeroplanes intact.

According to the terms of the treaty of Versailles, the German army should now have only 20 three-inch guns and no aeroplanes whatever.

These discoveries and other information in possession of the French authorities have caused considerable skepticism here, for the reason given that the request of the Berlin government to be permitted to send troops to the occupied zone.

The request came before the Germans had executed any material clause of the treaty, although the time limit has expired on some of the provisions, it is declared in French official circles as laying the Germans open to suspicion of making another move in efforts to avoid the carrying out of the engagements they entered into at Versailles. Particular significance is attached by the French to the discovery of the guns, in view of the fact that the Germans in a communication to the allied officials stated that it made no difference whether the materials were delivered or destroyed, and that they preferred to destroy it.

Thus far, however, it was said by a high official here, no evidence has been obtained by the commission of any destruction of material by the Germans.

The Aftermath of Action

(By Henry Chas. Suter)

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH MOST OF US?

It is true that peace has been declared, yet all the world over there has been no "cease fire" to human passions. For everywhere we see divisions, tensions, political conflicts, acts of violence and a general depression of spirits among this people, and so it is that we see them trying to find it out by indulging in artificial gaieties and riotous excitements. Together with this quest we see an insistent demand for a greater margin of wealth in order to attain that happiness, which at present seems an elusive and beyond our reach. What's the matter with most of us? The truth is that we have peace in Flanders, but no peace in our souls.

We are not going to recover very quickly from the years of adversity in which most of our old ideals of civilization, that is, the love of beauty, belief in the value of human life, faith in spiritual power, had to be put aside while we went back to a primitive use and fought for life and food. We taught to hate more in order to kill better and destroyed the beauty of sentiment in our souls while we blasted the beauty of the fields of Flanders, and the fact is that we are not going to create the most back as 'you were' in a hurry, even in spite of all our present extensive and material gains.

What we need today is not only a world peace but we need a peace of mind; we need to abolish quickly the code of violence that governed us in time of war. We shall certainly not get peace of mind if we continue to put our hatreds for old hatreds and another sort of strife for the old kind of faith in the future and in the inherent power of goodness to which we owe allegiance. Long may be the way, and as hard as we can find peace of mind, and if we want to get home to contentment we must leave the path that leads to stricken peoples, mob violence and broken hopes, and find the path which leads to peace of mind, which is our only salvation.

BESIDE THE CAMP FIRE

NOTES ON SCOUTING.

Commissioner Rev. Geo. W. Tebbe. The following most interesting account of the progress the Boy Scout Movement is making in India forms part of Rev. Perry Park's last report from India:

The key to tomorrow is the boy of today. The India of the next twenty years will be great in measure as the boys of today are won for high ideals of character, true citizenship and service.

In last year's report I stated that for several reasons I must now leave to inaugurate the Boy Scout Movement here in Delhi at that time. About the first of the year, however, the time seemed ripe for commencing that work. The chief commissioner of Delhi Province was interested and agreed the Government should give us a monthly grant which would enable us to pay the salary of a full-time man for that work. He said he wanted the Young Men's Christian Association to make the Scout Movement here part of their regular programme. Accordingly, the Scouts have been in reality a Boys' Department of the Association.

We now have five troops organized among the boys of the Mission, Government, Arya, Hindu (Unreformed Hindu), Orthodox Hindu and Mohammedan schools. The total membership is in the neighborhood of 1000, and includes Indian Christians, Hindus, Aryas, Mohammedans, Parsees and Sikhs. Of the Scoutmaster, who is Christian, one Arya, one Orthodox Hindu and two Mohammedans. The boys have shown a great interest in passing the different tests and on the whole have absorbed the principles of Scouting.

The big event up to date has been the meli or religious fair held a week or so ago. Several thousand Hindus gathered at the river here to worship the spirit of Juma, the River-God. The Scouts, forty strong, turned out to assist.

Usually the crowd at a Hindu meli is unbridled and disorderly, people do all over the place without thinking of order or convenience. The point of attraction is the river, and it is generally the scene of the greatest disorder and danger, often people are drowned owing to the eagerness of the crowd to get at the religious bath. On this occasion, our Scouts assisted the police in keeping order. They separated the men from the women and protected the latter; they prevented stampedes on several occasions by forming up with their staves touching and holding the crowd back. A life-saving brigade was stationed at the river to prevent accidents; some Scouts stood by to assist women to descend the slippery steps to the river. At least one Hindu child was restored to his parents and one man asked a Scout to find his lost wife. The Scout made it do so, passed on the information to the police. One of the Scouts found a woman lying unconscious on the wet road, called other Scouts to help him make a stretcher from Scouts' staves and shirts, and carried her to the hospital where she was soon put to rights.

The demonstration had a great effect upon the public. Prominent Hindus asked the identity of the boys who helped so well on many melis to see little codgers directing the traffic, but while they smiled they respected the boys who were so much more in the confidence of the crowd. Hindus wondered to see the usually rowdy Mohammedans assisting at a Hindu festival, but they were told that it is a Scout's duty to help others at all times. The spirit of service has appealed to all.

When the Scouts were first formed here the Indian principal of the Mission School asked for prayers at a missionary prayer meeting for the boys who have taken the Scout oath, remarking that it was practically a Christian vow. It has meant that at War Gratitude, etc. Retired soldiers and their dependents welcome at any time at the Armouries.

most of us. We shall get back our peace of mind when we learn to take pleasure in the right things. That is, the things that do not cost money or cost sweat, for instance; we must learn to take pleasure in the things that nature should take an interest in the beauties of nature, with its gift of sunshine and refreshing and cleansing shower, and maybe here we might find peace of mind when the heart is washed from our eyes and thus get rid of some of the scum that dog our steps elsewhere. We need a new good game, and it is played for the fun of the thing and for the joyous tiredness that makes rest sweet. We also need new good laugh, not at the other's expense, but something to soothe our sorrow and help us to blow away our griefs. We are now courteous, gentlemanly and willing to serve. A Mohammedan boy, who became our first King's Scout, has asked for baptism and is undergoing instruction now with the Mission school. These outstanding cases illustrate the fact that Scouting is changing the life of India by putting into his life ideals he did not possess before. The Scout is learning that self-respect, which knows how to respect others; by his salute and military bearing he wins respect; by his efficiency and willingness to serve, he holds it.

The crux of the problem of work with boys in India, as everywhere, is the leader. Good leaders of boys are hard to find, and frankly we have not been as successful with the leaders as with the boys. This is partly due to the fact that it has been necessary at the start to draw the Scoutmasters from the teachers of the schools from which the troops were formed. This has limited our scope. Although we have had one or two failures we are still working with the Scoutmasters and there are signs of success. We are going to experiment with college students and are about to train them as Scoutmasters. If they succeed that will relieve the situation considerably.

PROHIBITION REFERENDUM PLANS

Preparing For Another Vote—
Date Not Settled Yet

There is to be another vote on Prohibition in Alberta. The date has yet to be settled, but it may be in the near future. This is the result of the action of the Legislature in formally requesting the Dominion Government to conduct a referendum in this province on the question of the importation of liquor into the province, according to the Canadian Temperance Act as amended by the Federal Parliament at the session, preceding the present one.

The date is to be settled by the Dominion Government, which must leave the proclamation setting forth the day for such referendum within three months of the receipt of the request of the province, and then there has been some suggestion to bring it on in the early summer. Serious consideration is also being given to a proposal to have the vote on this matter taken in several, and perhaps all, the provinces of Canada on the same date, as there is every probability that other provinces contemplate similar referendums. Saskatchewan has, in fact, already presented its request before Alberta; Manitoba is likely to vote very soon while proposals to the same effect are now before the governments of Ontario, British Columbia and Nova Scotia, with the prospect that the others will follow very soon.

In these provinces active preparations are being made for the campaign. In Alberta, a Central Referendum Campaign Committee has been appointed which is now at work with the preliminary plans for the thorough organization of the whole province, and the financing of the campaign. The headquarters of the committee will be in the office of the Alberta Social Service League, 714 Tower Building, Edmonton, while a committee to supervise the campaign for the southern portion of the province is to be set up in Calgary. The prohibitionists are undertaking the campaign with the fullest confidence in the result, but fully realize the necessity for an efficiently conducted campaign, and are determined to take no chances.

FARMING PLEASURES

Mr. Walter Barrie, of Sundhope, Yarrow, Scotland, in an address on "the educational outlook as it affects agriculture," recently said:

"You often read in magazines and metropolitan papers about the monotony of farm work. Did anybody ever hear such nonsense? On this point the country wants to be educated. No occupation is less monotonous. The farm hand is seldom two days at the same job. His work changes with the changing seasons, and it has always to do with life—animal and vegetable. He sees the inner working of Nature at the fountainhead. He plows the field and scatters the good seed on the land, and forthwith he sees first the blade, and then the ear, and then the full corn in the ear. He works under the blue dome of heaven cheered by the freshness of the green earth, the music of singing birds, at the sound of a going in the tops of the swaying trees. He sees the flitting lights and shadows on the far away hills, and he hears the murmur of the burn as it wimplies by."

"If you want monotony and depressing sameness you must go into any of our well-named hives of industry. In these the division of labour is brought to such a pitch, you have men engaged year in, year out, boring holes, and then sticking something into them, or doing one of the hundred things that have to be done before the article is complete. They never see the finished product. Many of them don't know what it is like, and some of them don't care. And all the time they look on the same dead walls, they are defenced by the same endless chain of men, they are sickened by the same creosote smell."

"These same writers make a lot of the hopelessness of the lot of the farm worker. Here they want to be educated again. In the country I came from 50 per cent. of the farmers have either been herds or lands, or their fathers were before them. Now, how many millworkers become manufacturers? How many millworkers become directors? The country wants to be educated on the dignity, the nobility, the manliness of manual labour."

"The most independent man on the face of the globe is the man who can take hold of the skills of his plow or who can wield to some purpose a pick and a spade. Tammam Carlyle said in 'Sartor Resartus'—'man men I honor, and no third. First, the tiller, the craftsman that with earth-made implement laboriously conquers the earth, and makes her man's. Venerable to me is the hand hard, crooked, knotted. Venerable, too, is the rugged face all weather tanned.'"

"We want all to be educated to be more contented with the simple life; we want to be brought back to the Scottish virtues of thrift and frugality, of industry and perseverance, of self-help and self-reliance; we want to get back to that kind of education that produced a peasantry such as was portrayed by Robb Burns in his 'Cottar's Saturday Night.'"

EX-KAISER IS NOW WITHOUT AMBITION

Former Ruler Can Never Have Any Part in German Politics Again.

London, March 26.—I have personally interviewed an authority who has just returned from Amroengen, and he states that whatever political convulsions are taking place in Germany its former ruler can take no part.

The correspondent goes on to say that Wilhelm of Amroengen is a sick man with absolutely no ambition. After nine months in a medieval-looking castle, with his "court" restricted to half a dozen faded satellites, and his domain limited to a rose garden, he has dimmed the lustre of the ex-kaiser's personality. In the past, the man with tired eyes, flabby, shallow cheeks, it is difficult to recognize the once all-powerful autocrat whose vanity lost him his throne and whose ambition convulsed the world.

My authority continues that the "ruling passion" is still strong in the exile, and Wilhelm's vanity prompts him to ape the king though he failed to play the man. Every evening he summons a village barber to brush his hair, trim his moustache and Vandyske beard. Then garbed in one of his gorgeous military uniforms, he descends to dinner, a solemn meal, ordered with the ceremonial etiquette of the past court dinners.

From half past six to half past ten he seeks to capture something of his lost splendor. It is Wilhelm's twilight of madness, and out of sheepish his bored guests minister to his weakness.

FEARS PLOT TO KIDNAP

The light Chippendale chairs with slender arms have just been removed from the dining room of the ex-kaiser. His restlessness made heavy for furniture removal. Wilhelm is obsessed with the fear that a plot exists to kidnap him from the air. His attendants are constantly adjured to watch the sky for hovering planes.

Always an early riser, he still retains the habit in his later days and is up at six o'clock, breakfasts at seven, and by ten has finished his correspondence.

From ten to one he saws wood, generally with a doctor, who takes the other end of a double-handed saw. Despite the handicap of one useless arm, his wit shined left, he works with greater skill and power than any laborer on the Bantock estate. The muscular development of his right arm is remarkable.

"For trees are brought by the workmen by the score. The ex-kaiser's saw is well on to the 10,000 logs he set himself to saw before next Christmas. The logs are sawn into blocks about a foot long and two inches thick. Then they are inscribed with a blue pencil with the number, the date, the date and the initials "W.I."

VICTIM OF EMPRESSION

Wilhelm, the weary, smiles rarely nowadays. He is a victim to long fits of black depression, followed by violent outbreaks of somnolent passion. Only the kaiserin can soothe him, and she is almost always by his side, reading as he saws wood, chatting with him in the summer house or assisting him with his correspondence. He is usually attired in black. One feels nothing but sympathy for the kaiserin, who is bravely bearing the cross and dutifully watching over the fallen father of her children.

The men around the ex-kaiser to-day are: His Excellency Von Gendard, marshal of court; Court Chancellor Kraut; Captain Von Hatzmann, private secretary; Dr. Carl Forster, his body physician, and His Excellency Dr. J. Krieger, financial adviser. Countess Kelle is the lady-in-waiting. William Holmstrom is a broken man, wearing out his soul in exile.

COURT JUSTIFIES WOMAN WHO SHOT TO DEFEND HOME.

Montreal, March 22.—In the king's bench the jury, without retiring, returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Mrs. Joseph Clements of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, charged with attempted murder of P. Richter last December.

Mrs. Clements, to protect her husband who was threatened by Richter, a powerfully built man, fired first at the floor and then put a bullet in his thigh. In evidence she stated that Richter's wife on the morning following the shooting had said to her: "Why didn't you kill him?"

In his address to the jury Mr. Justice Dey said that had he been in the place of Mrs. Clements he would have shot straight and not at the feet of the man who tried to break up her home. The jury immediately after hearing the judge's charge returned a verdict as stated.

CORK POLICE EXONERATED

Cork, March 28.—A full and complete investigation of the whereabouts of the police on the night of the murder of Lord Mayor Mac Curtain has proved that none of them were off their beats or away from their homes at the critical hour, the government counsel, Mr. Wylie, told the coroner's jury which started an enquiry into the murder today.

Mr. Wylie said that a system of books was kept at the barracks in such a manner that the movements of the men were checked and showed it to be impossible that the crime was committed by a police officer.

Numbers of police rifles had been taken away, so that it was possible that they were used by others than the police, Mr. Wylie added.

He called attention to the fact that Lord Mayor MacCurtain on numerous occasions before his death had condemned the murder campaign in Ireland, and particularly the killing of policemen. The government counsel, therefore, said it was highly improbable that the police would have made him an object of attack.

DURUM WHEAT

(Experimental Farms Note)

The word Durum is not applied merely to a variety of wheat, but to a group of varieties which differ from each other almost as much as the various sorts of ordinary wheat. The Durum varieties have, however, several characteristics in common. They are usually bearded and have short, compact heads; the straw is rather weak; the kernels are extremely large and, as a rule, exceptionally hard. Most or all of the Durum varieties are more resistant to drought than ordinary wheats. This does not mean, however, that they will produce a good crop under very adverse conditions. Some of them show a good deal of resistance to rust, though they vary considerably in this respect. In the bread making qualities of the flour made from Durum varieties, there are very large variations. Some of the varieties, such as Kubanka, are excellent for bread making while others, the majority perhaps, are decidedly inferior. The flour is usually of a yellow color, sometimes bright and pleasing as in the case of Kubanka, and in other instances dull and unattractive. It is obvious, therefore, that if one decides to grow Durum wheat, the choice of the particular variety to be sown is not a matter of indifference.

The objections to the best varieties of Durum wheat arise not only from the yellow color of the flour (a shade which is not fashionable at present), but to the extreme hardness of the kernels. Durum wheat in pure condition cannot be ground into flour by exactly the same system as ordinary wheat, and if the miller has to deal with a mixture of Durum wheat and common wheat, the problem presented is very troublesome. Naturally, the millers are averse to changing their methods and will not do so unless forced by a shortage of ordinary wheat and the presence on the market of considerable quantities of Durum.

The yellow color of the flour is an objection the seriousness of which can easily be exaggerated. Provided, as in the case of Kubanka, the color is bright, it is hard to imagine that the public would long refuse to purchase the flour. The usual demand, however, is for white flour, even if it has to be bleached, and for yellow butter even if it has to be artificially colored. Of course the public is not very logical in setting these standards, but those who grow wheat for sale must bear in mind the wishes of the consumers.

In the northwestern United States there was a hard struggle before Durum wheat finally became established as a recognized and profitable article of commerce. Probably a similar struggle will occur in Canada, and those who are pioneers in the growing of Durum wheat may very likely find it impossible, at least at first, to obtain a fair price for their product. It seems almost certain that ultimately Durum varieties will be more remunerative to farmers in the southern portions of Alberta and Saskatchewan than the varieties which are now usually grown there.

It is difficult to advise farmers what should be done at present. So long as there is a good demand for Durum wheat for seed purposes all will go well, but it will be a different matter when attempts are made to sell the wheat in the ordinary way for milling. A commission firm in Winnipeg has been quoted as having given the following advice: "Don't grow any Durum until more is grown." This sums up the matter very well.

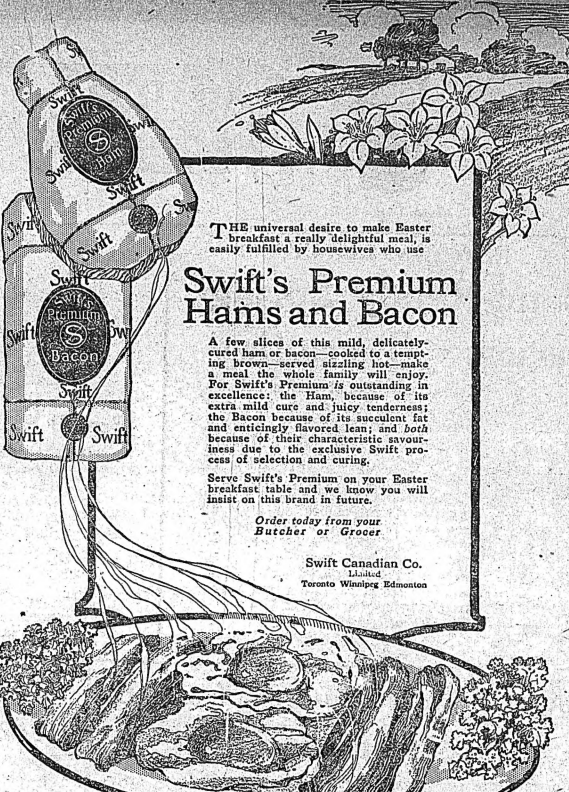

A farmer before sowing much of this kind of wheat, should assure himself that there will be a profitable market for it. Such a market will not likely be established in Canada until quite large quantities of Durum wheat are available.

HON. J. A. CALDER IS IN POOR HEALTH.

Ottawa, March 28.—Considerable worry has been felt recently over the condition of Hon. J. A. Calder, minister of immigration and colonization, who was suffering from an attack of influenza, and who was also threatened for a time with pneumonia.

However, the minister is said to be in much better health at present, but it is expected that he may find it necessary to go away for a short time to recover his strength. While definite plans have not been made, it is understood Mr. Calder will probably go south for a few weeks and will likely leave this week or early next.

THE universal desire to make Easter breakfast a really delightful meal, is easily fulfilled by housewives who use

Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon

A few slices of this mild, delicately-cured ham or bacon—cooked to a tempting brown—served sizzling hot—make a meal the whole family will enjoy. For Swift's Premium is outstanding in excellence; the Ham, because of its extra mild cure and juicy tenderness; the Bacon because of its succulent fat and enticingly flavored lean; and both because of their characteristic savouriness due to the exclusive Swift process of selection and curing.

Serve Swift's Premium on your Easter breakfast table and we know you will insist on this brand in future.

Pay Your Taxes THIS MONTH

10 PER CENT.

is a pretty fair slice off one's taxes. And that is what the city of Red Deer is offering the ratepayers on all taxes paid on or before March 31st, 1920.

The Mayor has left his own business in order to serve the citizens by endeavoring to make arrangements at Toronto with the head office of the bank to care for outstanding liabilities. The citizens can support his hand in no better way than paying their current taxes this month.

The repayment of taxes this month means that the City rebates the citizens the money that it would have to pay the Bank in interest.

If you cannot pay all, pay part.

It's a big saving. It will pay you to pay.

HOGS

The Local Board of Health has decided not to permit the keeping of hogs within the city limits this year.

MILK

All persons selling milk within the City limits must have a City license. Applications for permit must be given to Health Inspector Chas. Anderson, together with the license fee of $2.50, after which the cows and premises will be inspected before the license will be granted.

PEACE WITH RUSSIA CERTAIN

Foreign Office Convinced That Lenin and Trotsky Are Masters

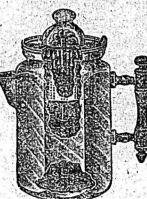

London, March 27.—Peace with Russia is certain within a brief time. This does not mean merely a discontinuance of hostilities, but a formal recognition of the de facto Russian government and the resumption of all trade and diplomatic relations. I am able to make this statement to-day after participating in authoritative conversations. The foreign office, I am able to state, is now convinced that Lenin and Trotsky are the masters of Russia. Lenin has formed the beginning of a coalition cabinet, to which he has admitted followers of Kerensky and a Menechikov minority party.

Very anxious for recognition by the Allies, he has recently made several concessions to European feeling, expressing himself as willing to violate even more the principles of Communism whenever they conflicted with the real interests of the country. He has also done much to encourage education, and has expressed his determination to throw the gates of industry wide open to foreign enterprises. He has offered inducements to experts of all trades and sciences to make Russia their home and help the Russian people reach the forefront of European civilization.

In a word, the Soviet government is developing into a conventional republican government on the basis that peace is at hand. Lloyd George has been anxious to close the Russian embargo, but the foreign office, particularly the Londoner, has been reluctant and the majority in the house of commons have held out against friendly relations and the removal of the blockade, which blockade is now recognized as much for its failure as for the plot of Deans and Kolchak backed by the Allies.

Even now large numbers of financial markets and promoters, from the neutrals, are waiting at border points ready to take advantage of the immense trade possibilities immediately the gates are thrown open.

CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

The first annual convention of the League of Red Cross Societies is now being held at Geneva. Advisers state that the conference will last for eight days and is one of the most noteworthy gatherings of those interested in public health and welfare that has ever been held.

The Canadian Red Cross is being represented at this conference by Mr. R. B. Bennett, President of the Alberta Provincial Branch, Sir Richard Lake, President, Saskatchewan Provincial Branch, and Lady Drummond, Vice President, Alberta Provincial Branch. The great central bureau organized under the direction of the League of Red Cross Societies, is already carrying on active operations at Geneva. Reports will be presented at the conference from the various departments that are already operating amongst the most important of which are the department of Medical Information and Publication, Department of Child Welfare, Department of Nursing, Laboratory Department, Department of Tuberculosis, Department of Industrial Hygiene and Department of General Diseases.

One of the most important topics to be discussed at the conference will be the consideration of the programme of service in peace time of each national Red Cross Society, and the most effective means of extending its membership and resources. Special interest will attach to descriptions of the methods used in raising funds, increasing membership, and work by local committees or chapters of the National Red Cross Societies.

Practically the only nations not represented at this conference are Germany, Russia, Austria and the new Turkish and Central European States.

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

A national membership campaign for membership in the Canadian Red Cross Society will commence on the 4th of October next. Special buttons and certificates will be issued in connection with this campaign.

is hoped that the Society will secure from 150,000 to 200,000 members in the Province of Alberta alone.

Circulars will shortly be issued to all branches in connection with the organization of Junior Red Cross work. This work has now been placed upon a national basis, and a special superintendent for Junior Red Cross work for the Dominion will shortly be appointed. Junior Red Cross organization will be undertaken almost immediately in Alberta.

ALBERTA RELIEF WORK

The Alberta provincial branch of the Red Cross has been active during the last few months in distributing relief for drought sufferers in Southern Alberta. The provincial office extends hearty thanks for contributions received from Red Cross branches, P.A., and C.F.W.A. Local and other organizations who have assisted the Society. To date, new clothing to the value of $14,888.14 have been distributed, supplemented by 4579 second-hand articles. It is estimated that 2,280 individuals have received relief direct from the provincial office.

SHOTT AND NOTT.

The story of these gentlemen and their duel—a famous one formerly—is revived, and the tale is thus retold.

A duel was lately fought in Texas by Alexander Shott and John S. Nott. Nott was shot, and Shott was not. In this case it was better to be shot than Nott. There was a rumor that Nott was not shot, but Shott avers that he was not, which proves either that the shot Shott shot at Nott was not shot, or that Nott was shot notwithstanding.

It may be made to appear on trial that the shot Shott shot at Nott, or as evidence with firearms are frequent, it may be possible that the shot Shott shot himself, when the whole affair would resolve itself into its original element, and Shott would be shot and Nott would not.

We think, however, that the shot Shott shot, not shot, but Nott. Anyhow, it is hard to tell who was shot.

IDLE THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FARMER

The burning of Palmer's pool hall is a severe blow to Bentley. It has thrown so many people out of employment by the loss of income. I have now stable to the front to act as locum tenens for the defunct pool hall.

It is to be supposed that the Educational Department know it all, but to an old fossil like myself some of their theories look like bunk with a big, large B. The children aren't taught any more to read the sound of letters and syllables, and so put words together; they are taught to know words by the look of them. I have heard kids read from their school books like a streak, and you show them the same words in different print in a newspaper, and they don't know them. They aren't to be drilled any more. Go to my table, and I will show you the multiplication table. They are to be shown the tables and absorb them by instinct. I suppose. They are to be drilled and the children will recite all kinds of "pieces" by the yard; ask them other hand how many are 7 times 6 and you have them stumped. There are some teachers who aren't worth the porridge they eat for their breakfast, yet by law they are to be paid the same as those who are right on to their job.

The Department of Education emphasizes to the parents the necessity of education and its importance, as without it no man is fitted for life's battles, and so forth. This being so, and it being well known that the average farmer is deficient from an educational point of view, you would expect the department to enact laws to protect these semi-educated and illiterate farmers who constitute the majority of school boards from the schemes and wiles of the enemy, and well equipped school teacher. No such thing? Those poor ignorant men are left to shift for themselves, and the educated teacher, who, according to the theories of the E. D. should be too well equipped to need protection, have all the protective laws passed in their favor.

On the Sabbath morning when John

McVicar was with his Bible Class, he said to them, "The sun shines on the just and on the unjust alike. What does that signify?" Charlie Wallace, "That it is been socialized," replied Kerensky says, "The way to save Russia is to leave her alone." A loan? Why she has had several, and the lenders wonder if they will ever see interest or principal.

They were talking of a newspaper controversy. "So those two men had an epistolatory dispute?" "No please, it was the dispute at all," replied Pat Burns, "they took it out in letter writing."

"An English 'medium' says that 'near beer' is popular in Heaven. From that we would surmise that the ardent spirits don't go there."

One of the Red Deer pastors makes it a practice to give strangers a cordial welcome. He is the speaker of a strange Swede girl in church, so after the service he hurried to the door to meet her. After welcoming her to the church, he hoped she would be a regular attendant. Finally he said that he would be at home some evening during the week he would call. "Thank you," she answered bashfully, "but a ban have a fellow all day with cattle dipping."

W. L. Mackenzie King is a great believer in safety first. He attended to the safety of his own car first during the war. Now he is, in his amendment to the speech from the throne, asking for a new election trying the safety first doctrine with the electors. "Everyone knows that W. L. M. K. is the last person who really wants an election. He had to retire to the remote fastnesses of P.E.I. before he could find a constituency that would tolerate him. In fact he had to go where he wasn't known to get his seat in the house. But he has to do the watchful watchdog act so he puts this bill over hoping to catch the mob. Mr. King gets all 'hot up' about the infamy of the war times election act which debared from voting a lot of his dear friends and people who have his sincere sympathy, e.g., naturalized Canadians of enemy birth, but he doesn't seem to think about the number of real loyal Canadians who would be done out of representation by an immediate election. The census will be next year, and it is expected the returns will show the west entitled to some fifteen or more new seats in the house. An immediate election would deprive the west of these seats during the next parliament. Mr. McKenize King knows this, but it doesn't suit his ideal of safety first to say so.

Claire, "I don't think it is right to say woman can't keep a secret." Jack, "What makes you say that?" Claire, "No woman ever tried."

ALBERTA CATTLE BREEDERS' ASS'N.

The annual meeting of the Alberta Cattle Breeders' Association was held in the Y.M.C.A. building, Victoria park, Calgary, Monday afternoon, and was well attended. The speakers of the meeting were Prof. George E. Day, secretary of the Dominion Short-horn Breeders' Association, Guelph, Ont.; S. G. Carby, Alberta livestock commissioner; if S. Hamer, chief of the cattle division of the Dominion livestock branch; and G. H. Hutton, of Calgary, who asked for the co-operation of all members in connection with the forthcoming cattle dipping to eradicate mange.

Secretary E. L. Richardson presented the annual report and financial statement, and the following officers and directors were elected, the new directors holding a meeting immediately following the annual meeting and elected their officers for the coming year as follows:

Honorary president—Hon. Duncan Marshall.
President—Frank Collicott, Crossfield.
First vice-president—G. H. Hutton, Calgary.
Second vice-president—John Wilson, Innisfail.
Assistant Director—Alex. Galbraith, Edmonton.
